

Weekly Weather Briefing

Monday, March 18, 2019

Issued Every Monday and Friday

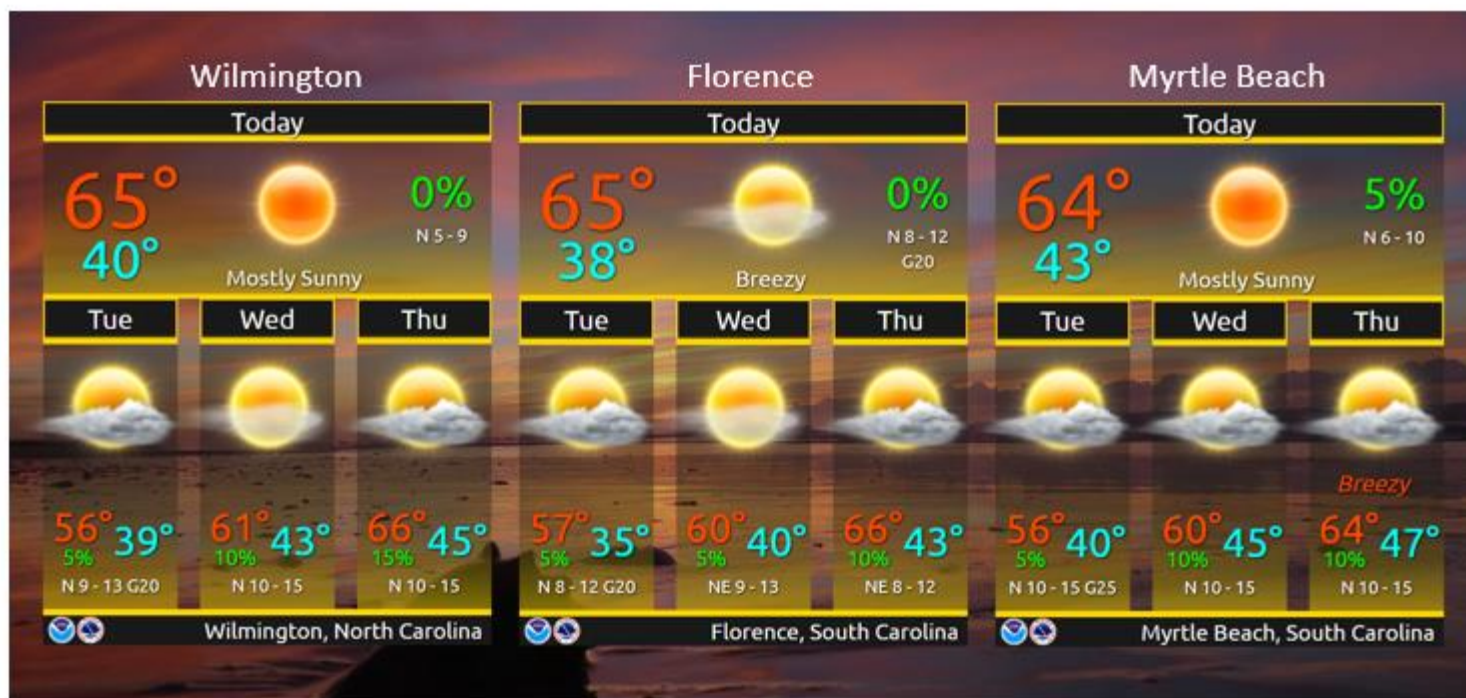

Weather Forecast Office
Wilmington, NC

Disclaimer: The Information Contained within this Briefing is Time Sensitive, and Could Affect its Validity as the Date/Time Moves Away from the Briefing Creation Date/Time.

Highlights

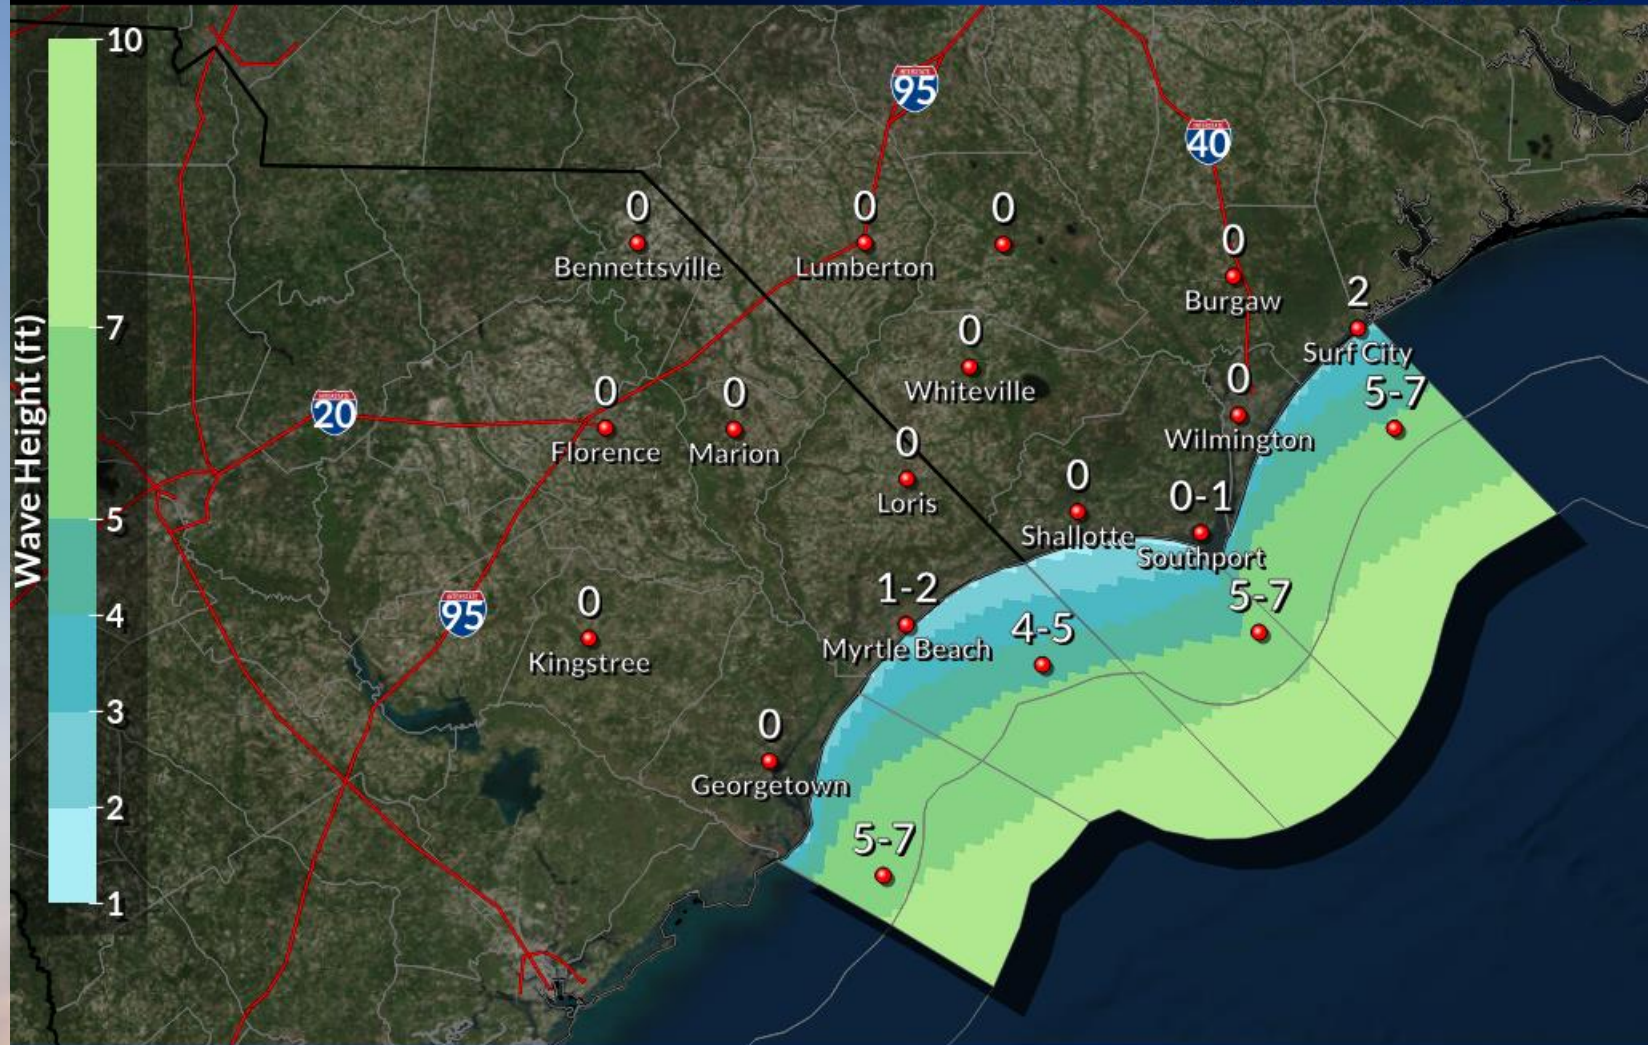

- Cool week to start, but warming toward the weekend.
- Potential for patchy frost or near freezing temperatures in traditionally cooler spots Wednesday morning.
- Aside from some periods of clouds, little to no rainfall expected this week. Best chance will come Wednesday into Thursday as low pressure passes well off shore and a moisture starved cold front crosses the area.
- For marine interests, Small Craft Advisory conditions will exist Wednesday into Thursday.
- Tides will run high through much of this week, with some minor coastal flooding expected along the Cape Fear River in downtown Wilmington.

Cool week to start with a warming trend heading toward the weekend

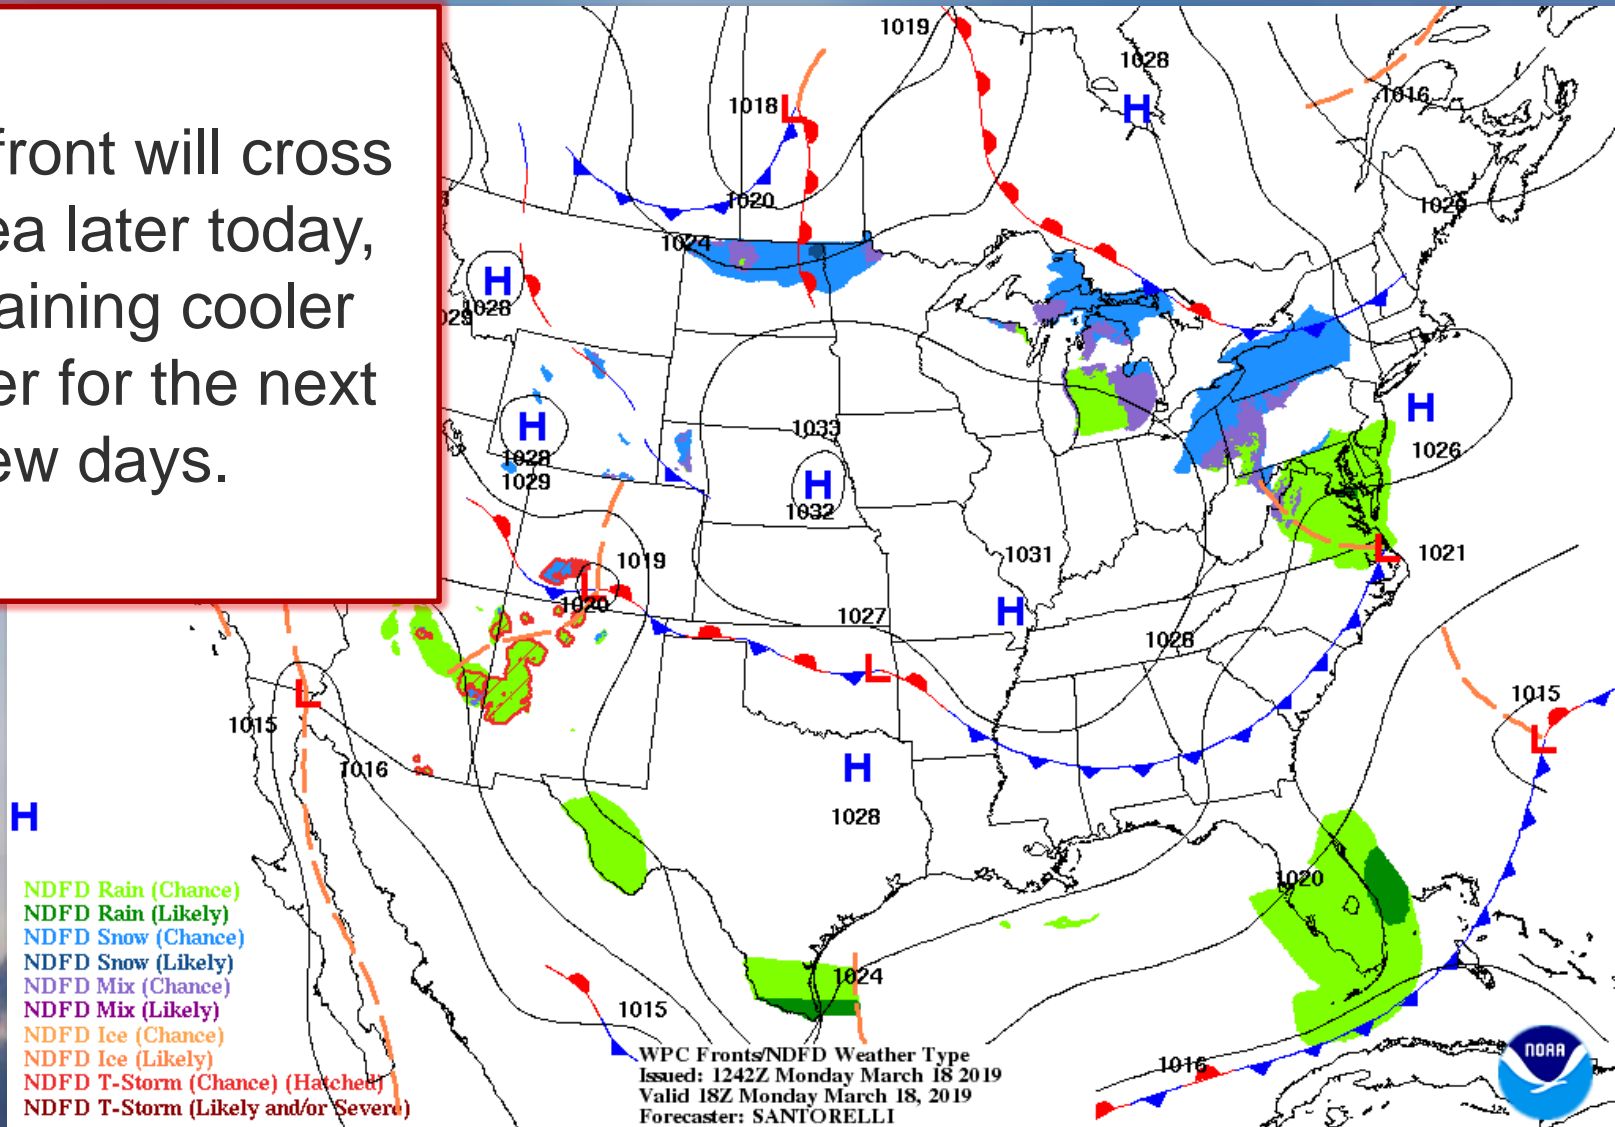

Small Craft conditions expected Tuesday into Wednesday.

Weather Forecast Office
Wilmington, NC
Issued Mar 18, 2019 11:02 AM EDT

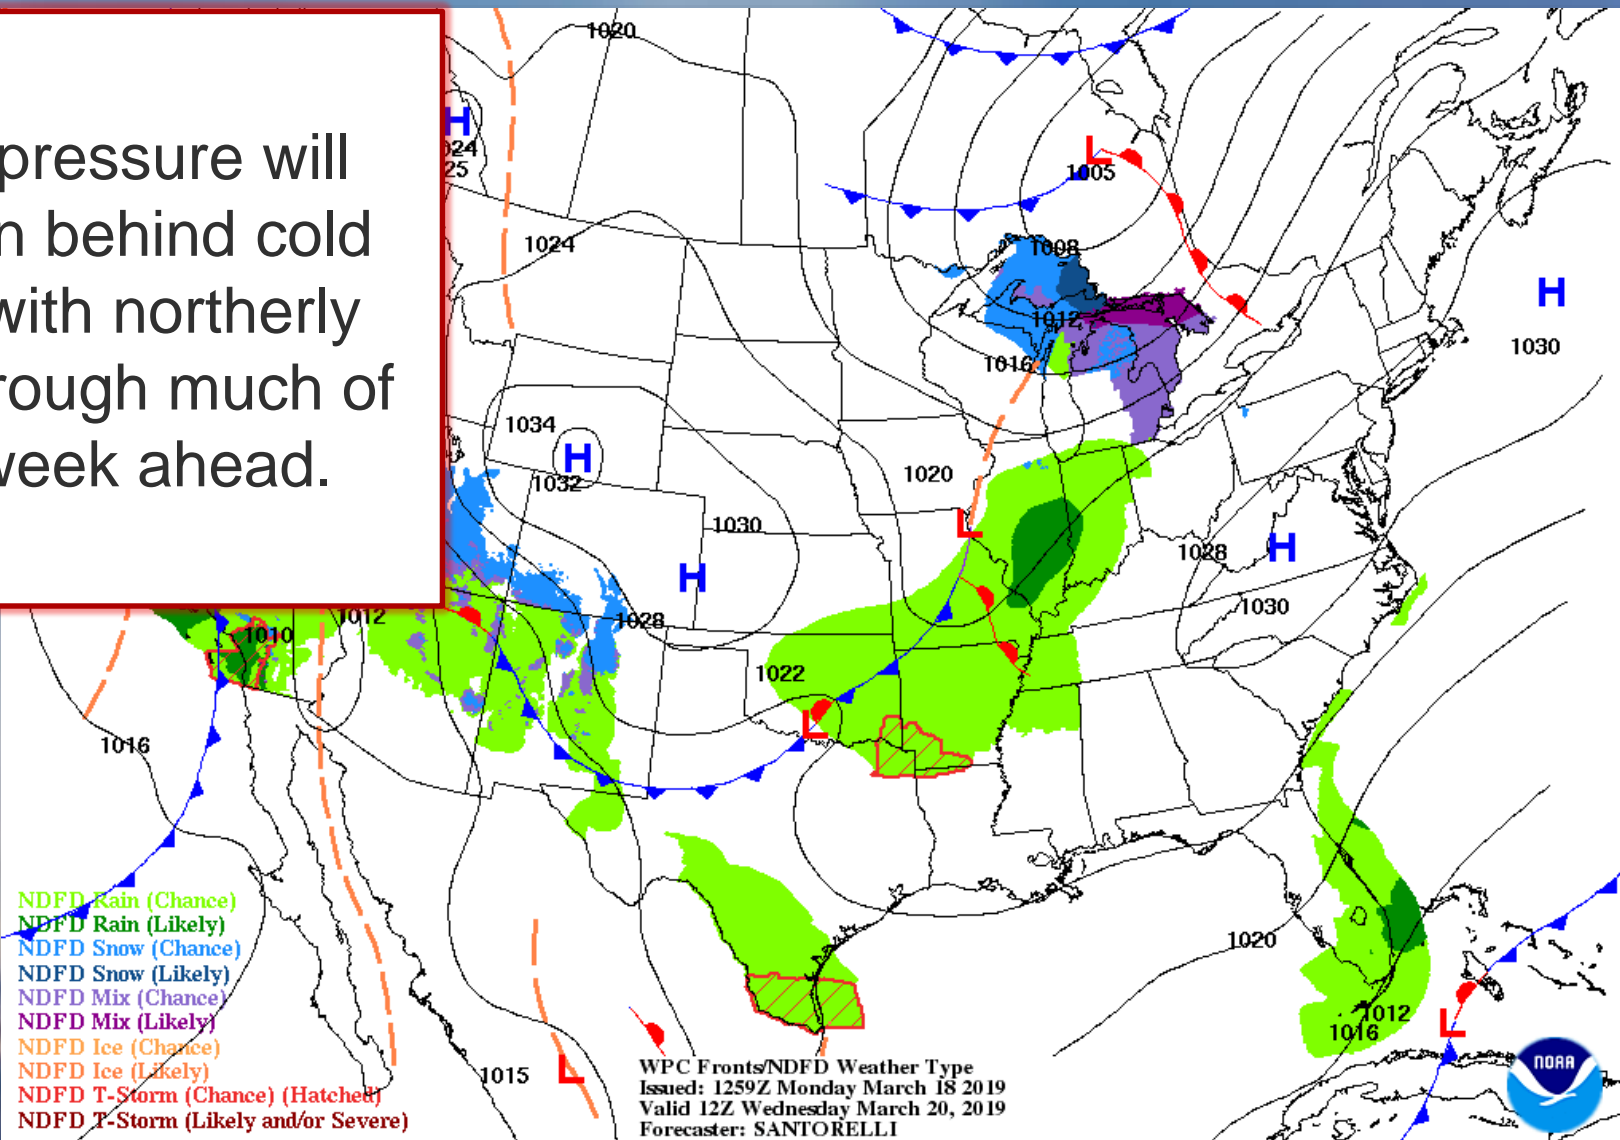

Today

A cold front will cross the area later today, maintaining cooler weather for the next few days.

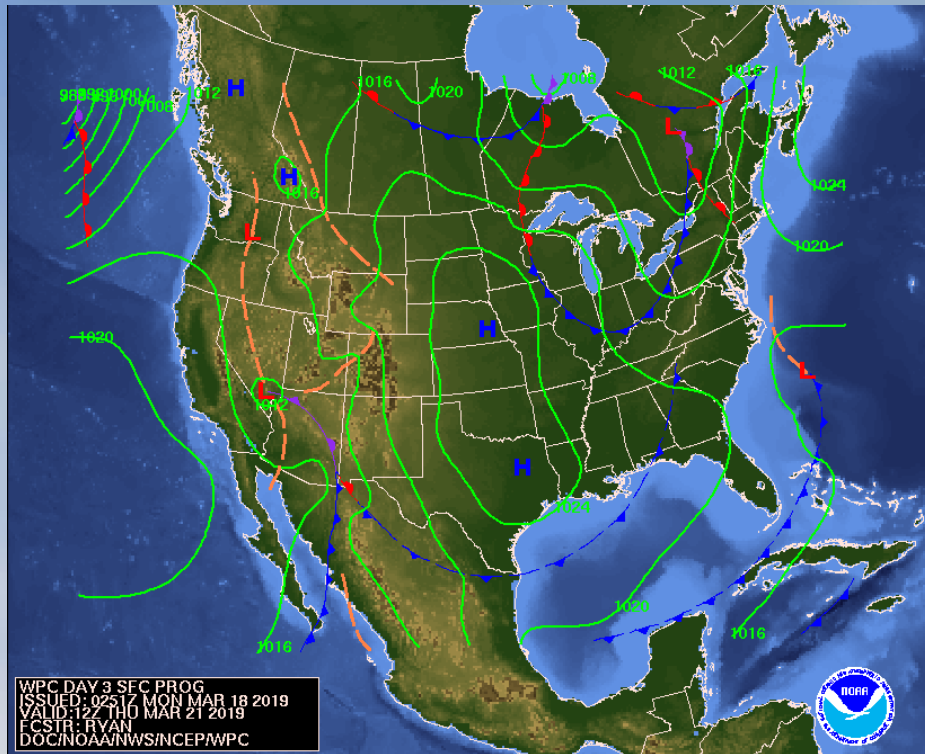

Wednesday Morning

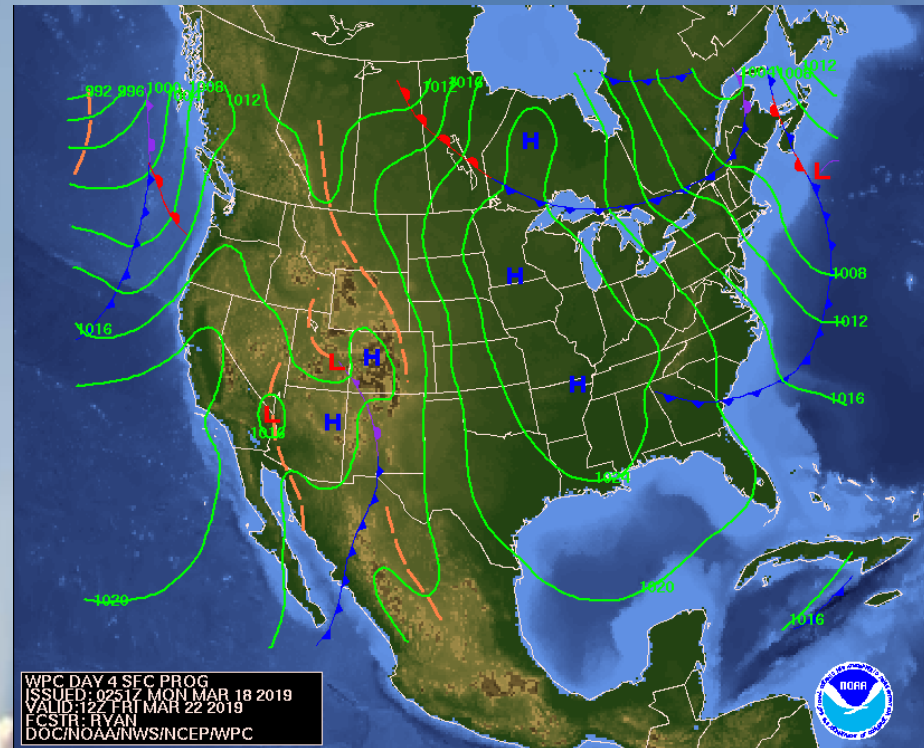

High pressure will build in behind cold front with northerly flow through much of the week ahead.

Thursday

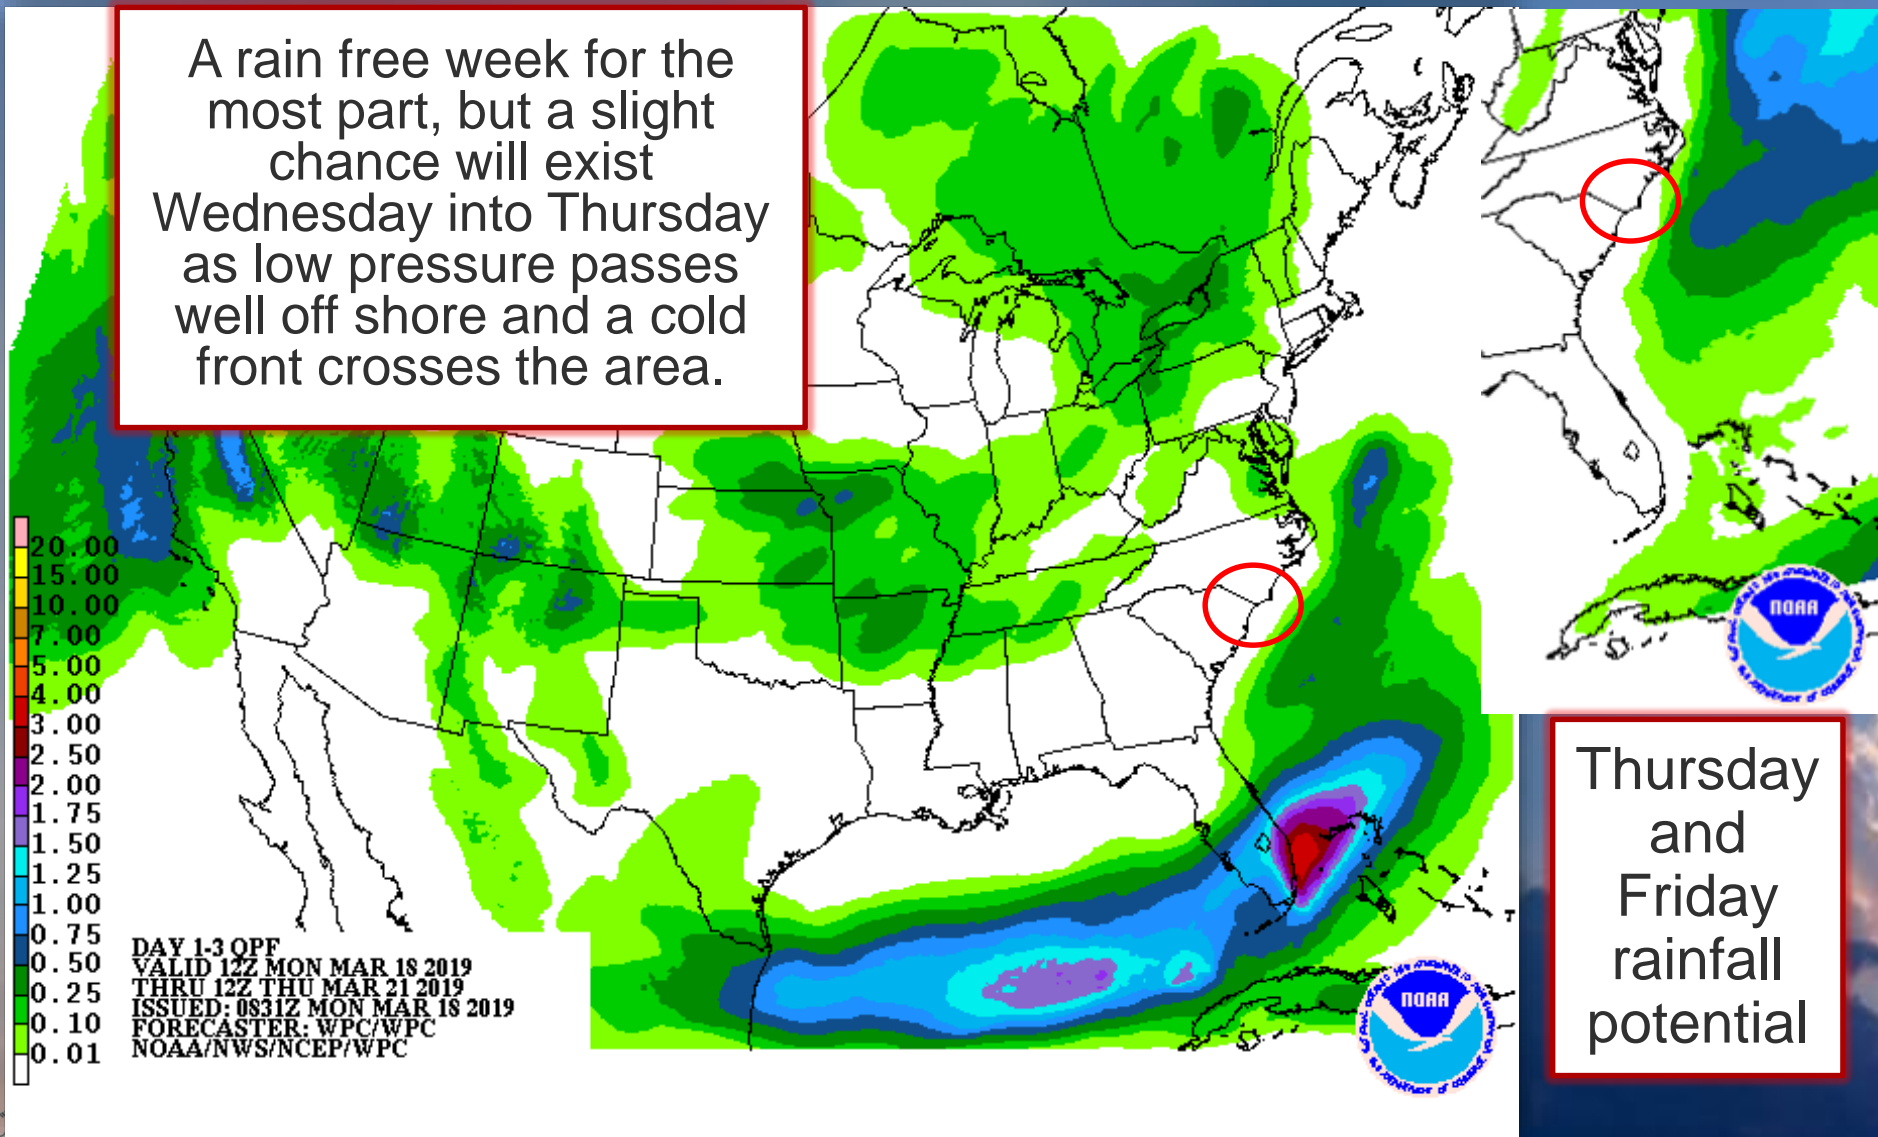

Friday

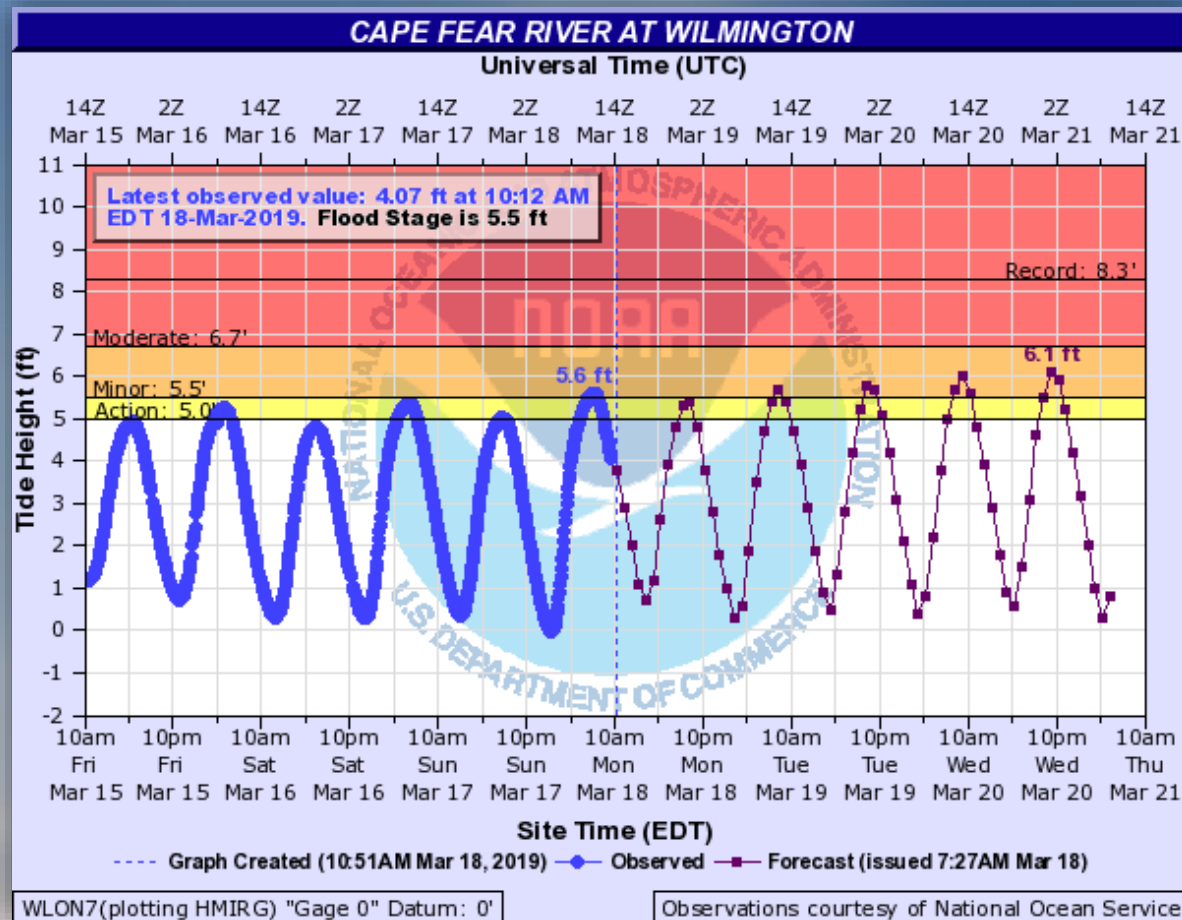

Cold front will cross the area by Thursday night with little to no rainfall expected.

Forecast Rainfall Through Wednesday Night

A rain free week for the most part, but a slight chance will exist Wednesday into Thursday as low pressure passes well off shore and a cold front crosses the area.

Downtown Wilmington, NC Tide Forecast

Minor coastal flooding is expected along the Cape Fear River in downtown Wilmington over the next several days, due to astronomically high tides. The Full moon will be on March 20th.

Web:
<http://weather.gov/ilm>

Facebook:
NWSWilmingtonNC

Twitter:
@NWSWilmingtonNC

Briefing Available At:
<http://www.weather.gov/media/ilm/LatestBriefing.pdf>